Do I require Dental Implants?

As teeth are lost, it becomes much more difficult to eat and chew food. The jaw bone melts away with disuse. To keep the mouth in its optimal function, it is best to replace teeth as soon as possible after they have been removed. You may be surprised to learn that 29% of denture wearers eat only soft or mashed foods and 50% avoid many foods altogether. Never have to mash your food again and get back to enjoying those yummy foods that you love to eat! If you are missing one tooth or all of your teeth, implant dentistry might be right for you.

Why is replacing missing teeth so important?

Replacement of missing teeth is essential to maintaining the bone in the jaw. The longer a tooth is missing the more bone is lost in that site. Dental implants are man-made replacements for natural teeth. The actual dental implant replaces the root of the missing tooth. It is then used as an anchor to secure the replacement tooth or teeth. Implants allow us to replace missing teeth without harming the healthy natural teeth adjacent to the space.
